

Priv. Doz. Dr. med. univ. Georg Feigl

Institute of Anatomy, Medical University of Graz, Austria

Dr. Georg Feigl graduated at the Medical Faculty of the Karl-Franzens University Graz in 1997 and became board certified anatomist in 2003. In the years 2005 and 2006 he worked as a University Assistant at the Division of Anatomy in Geneva, returned to Graz in 2007 and habilitated in 2009. His specialization is the ultrasound-anatomy, autonomic nervous system and anatomy in combination with Regional Anesthesia, Pain Therapy and Neuraltherapy. Additional scientific interests are inner ear surgery. He is Editorial Board Member of "Surgical Radiological Anatomy", "Anatomy", "European Journal of Anatomy" and "Open Journal of Pain"; Honored Member of the Hellenic Society for Neuraltherapy, Member of the Scientific Board of Austrian Society of Neuraltherapy and Austrian Society of Pain, Reviewer of 7 international journals; 9 teaching awards at the Medical University of Graz, Top teacher of ISMED (International Schmerzmedizin at the Medical University Vienna), received several scientific awards and poster prizes. 64 publications and over 500 citations, held more than 200 international presentations and 300 presentations at workshops, and is co-author of the "Atlas für periphere Regionalanästhesie" published in 3 languages.